Unlocking Maximum Performance

Business Creativity and Global Mindset

PROFESSIONAL

The World Economic Forum has identified Creativity as the "Next Big Thing for Business". As Artificial Intelligence (AI) and other technologies gradually replace workplace inefficiencies and improve productivity and customer experience with automation that requires minimal human intervention, how should businesses and professionals meet the digital challenge and equip themselves to stay relevant and employable?

This 1-day programme aims to inspire business professionals to think and contribute creatively to their workplace as organisations strive to unlock their maximum performance and the best part of human capabilities – Creativity – to deal with the imminent shifts that will change our world economically, socially and culturally.

Who Should Attend

Business owners, professionals and managers who need to unlock greater creativity and a global mindset to achieve maximum performance in attaining business goals / growth.

Programme Objectives

At the end of the programme, participants will be able to:

1. Differentiate creativity from innovation.
2. Understand why creativity is crucial and why it is so difficult to be creative.
3. Diagnose and describe the correct problem.
4. Develop effective ways of collecting ideas from within and outside of the organisation to deal with / respond to changes.
